

JOHN TAYLOR

John Taylor, now in his tenth season as head coach of the women's basketball program.

In 2008 added "Giant Killer" to his already impressive resume.

The win over the top team last season was added to other accomplishments that included becoming the first Marauder women's basketball coach to get 200 wins on the way to the team's seventh Foothill Conference championship -- their fifth in the last seven years. He also won his 350th career game as a head coach.

Last season's Elite Eight performance also points to a remarkable career for Taylor at AVC, where he is now in his 10th season as head of the women's basketball program.

Taylor led the No. 17 seeded Marauders to a 73-63 win over the No. 1 Orange Coast Pirates -- the first women's team seeded lower than 16th to pull the upset against the top seeded team in state history.

Intriguingly, Taylor almost accomplished the feat against Ventura when he coached LA Valley in 1998. The Monarchs lost by a point on a buzzer beater after six seconds were put on the clock after time expired.

Last season he led the Marauders to their seventh Foothill Conference championship and their fifth in the last seven years, while becoming the first Marauder women's basketball coach to get 200 wins. He also won his 350th career game as a head coach.

In the 2004-2005 season, Taylor put together the best team AVC has ever had.

The Marauders' theme for the season -- "History Made" -- was appropriate. AVC ended with a school record 31 wins on the season. At second in the state, they had their highest ranking ever. They also had their highest seeding ever. In 2004-05 AVC won 10, 20 and 30 games faster than any Marauder team in history. AVC opened the season with a school record seven straight wins. These seven included AVC's first-ever tournament championship (SD Mesa), AVC's first tournament MVP (Shalonie Hutchinson) and AVC's second tournament win (Glendale). AVC won their third tournament of the season by winning the Clear Channel Holiday Tournament, marking the first home tournament win.

All this surpassed a 2002-03 team that crafted a school record 25 wins, which included a 17-game winning streak and undefeated Foothill Conference championship team. Taylor won his 200th community college game as a head coach during the 2002-03 season, and was named the Foothill Conference Coach of the Year.

The 2007-08 season was the Marauders' sixth straight 20-win season a record, and marked the eighth straight playoff appearance for AVC.

In 2006-07, Taylor not only became the winningest women's basketball coach in AVC history, beating El Camino for win 143, but also picked up win 300 in his overall career -- against Chaffey at home.

The 2004-05 Marauder team became the first to play in the state semifinals, also a first for Taylor. Another first for Taylor was being named the State Coach of the Year.

Taylor was hired in 2002 as a full-time physical education faculty member after coaching two 19-win seasons, including two trips to the playoffs, and the inauguration of the Clear Channel AVC Holiday Tournament.

In 2007, Taylor finished his tenure as President of the California Community College Women's Basketball Coaches Association.

Taylor came to the Marauders after spending seven seasons as the head coach of the LA Valley women's basketball team. He crafted a 144-93 record with the Monarchs, and led them to an Elite Eight berth in the state playoffs in 1999, losing to the eventual state champion. The year before, LA Valley dumped the Marauders out of the playoffs, 70-65, in the first round, then lost by a point to the eventual state champion Ventura.

In fact, Taylor's teams have played in the playoffs 11 straight seasons, including a school record last six seasons with AVC, and three times the Monarchs played for a chance to play in the Elite Eight, making it once.

The Monarchs won the 1995-96 Western State Conference championship, and was runner-up three times. Taylor was named WSC Coach of the Year in that championship season. The worst Monarch conference finish was fourth.

Taylor spent five seasons as the Monarchs' assistant coach under Doug Michelson, before taking over as head coach. In those seasons, LA Valley played in the state championship game twice, and reached the Elite Eight four times.

Taylor graduated from LA Polytechnic High School, where he started as a point guard as a junior and senior. As a senior he was named All-East Valley League as he scored 12.5 points and dished off seven assists per game for the Parrots, helping lead Poly to the EVL title and the AAA quarterfinals. That season he was the Hart Invitational MVP, and was named to the LA Times All-Valley team. He was also named All-EVL in tennis as a junior and senior.

He then played a season at point guard for Michelson at LA Pierce College. Taylor has a bachelor's in physical education from Cal State Northridge, and his master's from Chapman University in education.

Taylor has been married for 27 years to his high school sweetheart and scorekeeper, Kathi. They have three sons, Sean (26), Brian (25) and Matthew (20).

BARRY GREEN

Barry Green enters his 23rd season as Marauder coach, his third with the women's basketball squad, moving over after the retirement of Newton Chelette as men's coach. Green was the men's assistant coach for 18 years.

Green came to AVC from CSU Bakersfield, where he was a graduate assistant coach for the basketball team.

A graduate of Merced High School, Green was the team's most valuable player as well as the Central California Conference's MVP. He also played football and baseball for the Bears.

Green played at Columbia College in Sonora for one year, winning Central Valley Conference honorable mention honors.

He then moved to Eastern Montana, where he played for three years and received his bachelor's in physical education. He was named the team's most valuable player in his senior year and was a first team All-Great Northwest Conference selection. He was a second team selection in his sophomore and junior seasons. He received his master's degree in physical education from Azusa Pacific.

In 2000, he became a permanent member of the AVC faculty, was granted tenure and was named the Marauder Women's Tennis team head coach.

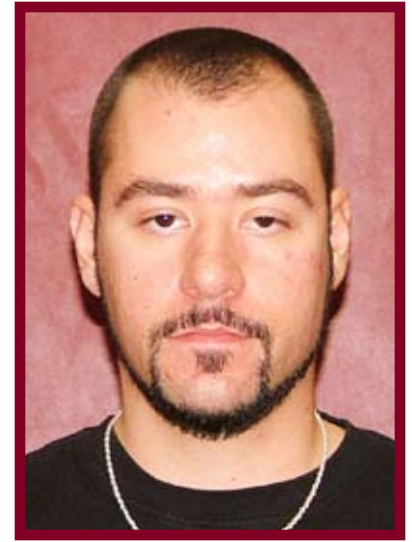

Green spent one season as head coach of the boys' team at Trona High School, coming away with a 17-6 record.

Green and his wife, Julie, reside in Lancaster with their daughter, Bailey, and son, Julian.

SEAN TAYLOR

Sean Taylor enters his second season as Marauders' assistant coach.

Taylor, the 26-year-old son of head coach John

Taylor has been helping out the Marauders since 2003.

In 2004, he tried out for the Marauder men's team but tore his ACL before he could play for the team.

Taylor graduated from Antelope Valley High School in 2001, and earned an associate of science degree in computer drafting and design from ITT Technical Institute in 2003.

He is single and resides in Lancaster.
